

Search Free Arrest Warrants - How to Find Your Warrants

Is it possible to do a free arrest warrant check?

Arrest warrants, even active warrants are public records which means that they are accessible to you or to anyone else in many cases. If you are checking your records and search free arrest warrants on yourself then it should be a simple matter of visiting the courthouse and making an enquiry.

This is ok if you know where your arrest warrant was issued but it's a whole different story if you aren't sure where the warrant might be. You might need to make a visit to every courthouse that could have your warrant and there's a lot of them. I'm going to give you a few tips on how you can search for free arrest warrants easily and quickly.

Who do you think would be the best person to ask if you wanted to know if there is an active arrest warrant for you fast? Police officers are doing it all the time. They pull you over for a faulty tail light and suddenly they have found an arrest warrant on you. What could be easier than walking up to a cop and just asking? It is probably the easiest, cheapest and most reliable way of finding a warrant out on you. Just be prepared to be arrested if they find that there is an active arrest warrant out for you because that's what they do.

You can do a free search for arrest warrants in your local court records office or in any courthouse in any area. Some authorities publish their databases online which makes things a lot easier for you but you may have to go and visit others. In general they only keep their own records.

Is a national free check for arrest warrants possible?

Can you imagine trying to visit every courthouse in the land or even just contacting them all? It would take you forever and you would have to do it every time you wanted to do a national check. It's not going to happen is it. You could get a private investigator to do it for you but that's hardly going to be free is it. Contacting every courthouse yourself is going to cost you in traveling and telephone charges so not even that method is completely free.

Cheap and affordable arrest warrant checks are much better

There is now as there has always been, a huge demand for comprehensive background information. Is it ever wonder that we have been prepared to hire private investigators to find the information for us and pay them a lot of money for the privilege. Recent advances in technology and the Internet in particular has made it viable for companies to gather publicly available records and give you access to them all from a single web site.

Of course they have to make a charge to pay for the work required to assimilate billions of public records but it's a relatively small charge and well worth it. The best specialist background check web sites have been collecting data for years and are constantly updating it from numerous sources both online and offline. Using this data you can perform searches for active arrest warrants and background checks on almost anyone you want.
